

How to get from Chile to Argentina through Paso Mayer with a bicycle.

At Villa O'Higgins (Chile), the Carretera Austral stops and there is no road to go further south. The standard way for cyclist is to cross the lakes and ride to El Chalten (Argentina), but the boats service only runs during high season, from beginning of november to april roughly and is bit expansive, about 100US$ as for 2011.

So if you get to Villa O'Higgins when there is no boat service or if the price is a problem for you, the closest other option to go to Argentina is Paso Mayer.

The following pdf file sums up what we remembered from our crossing, with the help of Ian and that crossed there about a month before us.

Andre

Roadbook Paso Mayer V1.pdf

For those using a GPS, the .gpx file of our crossing is here :

Paso Mayer 01.gpx

If you think this roadbook is missing important things or if conditions were different when you went there, please write a comment here or send us an email to the address given in the pdf file.

Hope it helps.

Un tour en vélo ...

Écrit par Eric

Lundi, 12 Novembre 2012 15:45
